Decision For Plaintiff in Case of New Haven Road vs. Louis Cella—Temporary Postoffice Building To Be Used After Monday Next—Miss Frances H. Avery Dies at Hope Valley.

The trial before Judge Shawmut and a jury in the superior court at New London in the case of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad Co. against Louis Cella, which involved the ownership of the land upon which Cella erected a building at the corner of Mechanic and West streets, close to the abutment of the bridge, on the site of the old City hall, so-called, resulted in a judgment for the railroad company. The decision is of far-reaching importance, as it not only affects the Cella property but considerably enlarges the right of the railroad company to use the premises and to erect buildings thereon. The railroad company had previously been successful in its suit against Cella, who had been granted a writ of injunction to prevent the railroad company from using the premises and from erecting buildings thereon. The railroad company had previously been successful in its suit against Cella, who had been granted a writ of injunction to prevent the railroad company from using the premises and from erecting buildings thereon.

The case was a suit for abatement brought by the railroad company to recover the property occupied by Cella. The suit was brought in 1910. Evidence showed that representatives of the railroad company had acquired the premises and commenced boring through the foundation of the building in order to lay the tracks. The railroad company had previously been successful in its suit against Cella, who had been granted a writ of injunction to prevent the railroad company from using the premises and from erecting buildings thereon.

In 1912 the Connecticut legislature granted the New York & Stonington Railroad Co. the right to build a line from Stonington through the town of Stonington to the New London. The railroad company had previously been successful in its suit against Cella, who had been granted a writ of injunction to prevent the railroad company from using the premises and from erecting buildings thereon.

INVESTIGATION WANTED! Stop, Look and Listen

See our "Flying Merkel" Motorcycle exhibit in Preston Bros' window Thursday, Friday, Saturday and Sunday. We heartily invite you to call and inspect the same.

In speed trials, both on track and road, "The Flying Merkel" has hundreds of victories to its credit, among them several world records. In one year alone "The Flying Merkel" won 57 per cent of the events entered. It assures you of absolute satisfaction.

The spring frame and ball-bearing motor construction in "The Flying Merkel" is for the man that wants the best and most comfortable motorcycle that can be built.

It is the world's premier machine for comfort, speed and endurance, and is absolutely reliable under all kinds of road conditions, easily controlled, economical to operate and particularly flexible and responsive. Another dealer recently said, "There is always a demand for the best," and that is the one reason that the "Merkel" factory is running a day and night shift to supply the demand.

We want sub agents in every town in Eastern Connecticut. Write to STEPHENS & WYNET, General Agents, Norwich, Conn. Selling Agents, PRESTON BROS., Norwich, Conn., RAY & PELLITT, Danbury, Conn.
